Protecting Your Data, Respecting Your People

Alongside efficient onboarding, we take data privacy and information security just as seriously. That's why we request all new customers to complete an authorised contacts form as part of the setup process. This step ensures our support team only communicates with individuals who have been pre-approved by your organisation.

This isn't bureaucracy, it's best practice. With GDPR requirements shaping how organisations handle and share data, the days of ad hoc telephone support are over. By specifying approved personnel in advance, you're protecting your employees' information and safeguarding your business against unauthorised disclosures. And with timeware's ISO 27001-certified processes underpinning everything we do, you can be confident that your data is handled with the highest levels of care and integrity.

To keep things current, we update the approved contact list annually as part of our quality assurance. If there are any changes to your authorised personnel in the meantime, please let us know as soon as possible, so we can update our records and avoid any disruption to your service.

Security and service go hand in hand. From the first phone call to ongoing support, we build trust by doing things properly. Because at timeware®, protecting your workforce starts with protecting their data.
